Leading Manhattan website design and development firm says that Milosh J. Cerevka brings experience and an impressive work history which makes him so valuable to the company.

Online PR News – 30-July-2010 According to Peter Crisafi, Vice President of dzine it, Inc., a leading New York web development and website Marketing company with clients throughout the United States, the firm has named Milosh J. Cerevka, former Associate Director of Development Counsellors International (DCI), as the company's new Vice President of Sales.

"We're happy to have Milosh join the dzine it team, says Crisafi. "We are confident that he will be an asset to the growth and expansion of the dzine it brand."

Cerevka has an impressive track record in sales and marketing, including holding top positions at firms such as California-based UserTrends, Inc., WebTel Wireless, Inc., and New York-based ICS Inc. Most recently, Cerevka worked at a top level position at DCI, a 50-year-old global economic development firm that specializes in marketing, public relations, social media, website enhancement, trade promotion, tourism, and business attraction services for countries, states, cities and regions.

"Milosh brings solid know-how to the table, which will help in building corporate relationships with dzine it," Crisafi explains. "His previous experience working with government contracts will be an asset to our company as well."

Cerevka's extensive background makes him the perfect fit for the dzine it sales team, Crisafi explains, and he too is looking forward to the new position.

"I am excited to be joining this cutting-edge web technology services and design firm," says Cerevka "The dzine it team understands the importance of providing web services that are innovative, useful and profitable to their clients. I look forward to helping dzine it grow through new client acquisitions and other strategic opportunities."
