InBoundMarketingPR has completed a major part of the process which is the move of the website from JediMindInc.com to MindTechnologiesInc.com. The new site is fully functional and all website traffic is now directed to the new domain.

In a news release from 30 August, 2010, Mind Technologies announced has that they have resolved to change the name of the corporation to 'Mind Technologies, Inc.' in order to avoid potential infringement of trademarks owned by Lucasfilm Ltd. The Company has ceased the use of the 'Jedi' name and has filed for such change in name with FINRA, at which point a new symbol will be issued as well.

“The most significant part of moving a website is making sure all the redirects are set up; in other words, all news releases, and links across the Internet need to still work after the move,” said Tom Allinder, President of InBoundMarketingPR. “It can be a tedious process but everything works now with the new site at MindTechnologiesInc.com,” Allinder concluded.
