Guardian Mortgage Company Opens San Antonio Location

Several other offices have been proposed throughout Texas, Michigan, Arizona and Colorado.

Dallas, Texas, March 7, 2016 – Guardian Mortgage Company has officially expanded its footprint in Texas, now adding a San Antonio location to its list of branches in the Lone Star State.

Though the office is currently housed in a temporary space, the San Antonio office already has three permanent employees in place: branch manager Carlos Verduzco and seasoned loan officers Margie Santos and Dan Minnich. Santos and Minnich bring with them more than 16 and 25 years of origination experience, respectively.

“We are so excited to launch our newest office location right here in Alamo City,” Verduzco said. “We believe our hands-on services, expert team members and customer-driven focus can really be a help to home buyers in the area.”

Guardian is currently looking for experienced loan officers to join its San Antonio-based team. Potential candidates are encouraged to apply at GuardianMortgageOnline.com/Recruitment.

In addition to the San Antonio location, Guardian Mortgage is preparing to open several additional locations throughout the U.S. in 2016. Proposed locations include: Park Cities, and Austin, Texas; Troy, Michigan; Phoenix, Arizona; and Denver, Colorado. The next to open will be in Troy, with Park Cities close behind.

“After more than 50 years in the business, we’ve served thousands of home buyers over the years,” said Marcus McCue, executive vice president of business development at Guardian. “We can’t wait to serve thousands more as we expand our services across the country.”

Guardian is currently recruiting experienced loan officers and branch managers in each new locale. Perks of employment at the company include a strong dedication to personal and professional development, a full-service marketing department, comprehensive training, and a stimulating, customer-service driven work environment.
